ROYAL COMMISSION ON THE POOR LAWS AND RELIEF OF DISTRESS.

MEMORANDUM ON CENSUS OF PAUPERS, MARCH 31st, 1906.

IRELAND.

(1) AVAILABLE STATISTICS OF PERSONS
RELIEVED IN IRELAND.

1. In Ireland, as in England and Wales, statistics of pauperism are obtained for each Saturday throughout the year. But there is an important difference between the two series. The Irish statistics follow a more elaborate classification than the English weekly statistics, and in this respect they more nearly resemble the English half-yearly returns.

2. At the time of the appointment of the Commission the statistical material available was such as was contained in the Annual Reports of the Local Government Board for Ireland, and as it was considered desirable to obtain fuller statistics for each union, and especially of the ages of the persons relieved, it was decided to extend to Ireland the Census of Paupers of March 31st, 1906. By this means comparable statistics would also be obtained for the three divisions of the United Kingdom.

3. After the Census was taken however, the Report of the Vice-Regal Commission on Poor Law Reform in Ireland was presented to Parliament, and the Appendix to that Report contains a considerable volume of statistics of poor relief for various dates and periods in the years 1904 and 1905. In the main the classification adopted for those statistics followed the lines of that used in the weekly returns, but with considerable expansion and with much fuller details regarding the sick. The number of cases and persons in receipt of outdoor allowances of various amounts was also included in these statistics. But no statistics of the ages of the persons relieved were obtained, except in regard to children in workhouses or boarded out.

4. Still later, Mr. Edmund Bourke, one of the Poor Law Inspectors for the Local Government Board for Ireland, furnished the Commission with a series of Tables, giving the same details for each union as those published by the Local Government Board for each Saturday for the whole of Ireland, and the classification was again slightly extended. Mr. Bourke also put in some valuable Tables dealing retrospectively with pauperism in Ireland.

5. And, finally, the Local Government Board for Ireland obtained, at the request of the Commission, a return showing the number of persons relieved in each union during the year ended March 31st, 1908, and the period and recurrence of the relief. This Return has been published as a Parliamentary Paper (H.C. 306 of 1908) and the Summary Table is printed in this Volume on pp. 2 to 7.

6. It is not proposed here to review all this statistical material, but reference may be made to some of the information in the course of the examination of the results of the Pauper Census of March 31st, 1906.

(2) FORM AND SCOPE OF THE PAUPER CENSUS.

7. The forms used in Ireland were identical with the English forms, a copy of which is included in the Statistical Appendix, Volume XXV., to the Report, for England and Wales. Briefly, the information for which the guardians were asked included the ages and occupations or former occupations of the persons relieved, and the form in which the relief was given. The guardians were also asked to classify the persons relieved according to a classification based partly on family relationship, partly on physical and mental condition, and partly on the causes which led to the application for relief.

(3) THE PERSONS COUNTED AS PAUPERS.

8. The practice in regard to the persons counted as paupers appears to be similar in Ireland to that in England. When out-relief is given to the head of a family, the whole of the members are counted as paupers, but when a member of a family is relieved in an institution no other members of the family are counted unless they also are in receipt of relief.

9. Children are so classed until they attain the age of fifteen, after which any relief given would be considered as given to them on their own account. In England the corresponding age is sixteen, in Scotland, it is fourteen.

10. Every person relieved is counted although the whole cost of the relief may be repaid.

(4) TOTAL NUMBER OF PERSONS RELIEVED.

11. Returns were obtained by the Commission from all the unions in Ireland with the exception of Rathdown. From the Bawnboy Union no Returns as to outdoor relief were received. The number of persons omitted on this account from the Census results is probably about 1,250 or $1\frac{1}{4}$ per cent.

12. Pauperism reached its maximum in Ireland shortly after the end of the famine of 1846-7. In the year 1848-9 the mean number in receipt of relief was equal to 1 in 10 of the population. This proportion however, rapidly diminished with the succeeding agricultural prosperity, and reached its minimum in the years 1858-60, when the mean number was equal to 7 per 1,000 of the population. The period that has since elapsed may, from the statistical point of view, be divided into two periods. From 1861-2 to 1879-80 the mean numbers varied from 61,000 to 95,000, and the proportion to population from 11 to 18 per 1,000. The reductions in the seventies which took place in England and Scotland did not extend to Ireland, and during that decade the Irish rate was gradually rising. Since 1879-80 the mean numbers have varied from 97,000 to 114,000, and the proportions from 21 to 25 per 1,000. The Census was taken on March 31st, 1906, the night between the two financial years 1905-6 and 1906-7, when the rates were 24 and 23 per 1,000 respectively. The general level of pauperism at the time the Census was taken was thus about the normal level of recent years. (See Appendix No. I. (G) to Mr. Bourke's Evidence.) In relation to the seasonal fluctuations in pauperism, however, the date was not far removed from the maximum period. The highest point is generally reached about the end of February.

13. The total number of persons in receipt of relief on March 31st, 1906 was 101,704, or 23·2 per 1,000 of the estimated population in the middle of that year. The corresponding rate in England and Wales was 24·0 per 1,000. In comparing the two figures it should be remembered that a considerable amount of medical relief is given in Ireland under the Medical Charities Acts independently of the Poor Law. If the cases receiving "medical relief only" in England and Wales be deducted from the total the proportion of paupers to population would be much the same in both countries.

14. Omitting casuals, the number of men, women, and children under sixteen was :—

	Number.	Proportion to estimated population.
Men - - - - -	27,914	Per 1,000. 18·9
Women - - - - -	47,780	31·0
Children under 16 - - -	25,165	18·4
	100,859	23·0

15. The rates for men and children do not differ very materially from the corresponding rates for England and Wales, but the rate for women is appreciably higher in Ireland than in England and Wales or in Scotland.

(5) AGES OF PERSONS IN RECEIPT OF RELIEF.

16. A Table (No. II.) is attached to this Memorandum

	Adults under 60.	Adults over 60.
	Per 1,000.	Per 1,000.
Men - - - - -	7·7	74·8
Women - - - - -	11·9	131·3
TOTAL - - -	9·9	103·2

17. Here again, the rates for adults under sixty are very similar to the corresponding English rates. The rates for adults over sixty are, however, much below the English rates. Though they are not as low as the Scottish rates, it is probable that the circumstances which lead to a low rate of aged pauperism in that country, are also the cause of the comparatively low rates of aged pauperism in Ireland. In Ireland agriculture provides a living for a much larger proportion of the population than it does in England and Wales, and it is possible for people following that occupation to continue at work till a later age than people engaged in other industries. The system of land tenure is also the means of keeping down the rate of aged pauperism for the aged parents continue to dwell on the farms of their sons and daughters though able to perform little or no work. Moreover, the standard of living in the remoter parts of Scotland and Ireland is much lower than in any part of England and Wales, and aged people in the former countries may often obtain from the charity of their neighbours or in other ways, an income on which they contrive to live, but on which it would be impossible to live in England and Wales.

18. The points to be noticed in the more detailed Table (No. II.) in the Appendix are similar in many respects to those found by the examination of the English and Scottish statistics. There is the increasing rate for children from infancy to the age at which they commence work, and for adults as age advances. And there is the drop in the rate for women at ages forty-five to fifty-five, produced by widows previously in receipt of relief becoming independent as their children grow older.

19. A somewhat remarkable distinction between the Irish rates of aged pauperism and the corresponding English and Scottish rates may, however, be noticed. In England and Scotland the rate increases without interruption, but in Ireland the rates for persons over eighty years of age appear to be lower than those for persons aged seventy-five to eighty. It seems unlikely that this can be correct and it is probably the result of some defect in the age statistics of persons relieved and of the aged population generally, owing to the absence, until 1864, of a complete system of the registration of births.

(6) THE METHOD OF RELIEF.

20. The persons in receipt of indoor relief and outdoor relief respectively numbered :—

Indoor relief - - - - -	44,613
Outdoor relief - - - - -	56,246
Total - - - - -	100,859

classifying the persons relieved according to age, and giving the proportions per cent. of the population in each age group. Separating the adults over sixty from those under sixty, it is found that the rates were as follows :—

21. It may be remembered that more than four-fifths of the persons relieved in Scotland, and more than two-thirds of those relieved in England and Wales, were in receipt of outdoor relief in 1906. In Ireland the corresponding proportion is only 55·8 per cent. The indoor system is thus more frequently used in Ireland than on the other side of the Channel. The reason for this difference may be found in the history of out-relief in Ireland. Under the Poor Relief (Ireland) Act, 1838, relief could only be given in the workhouse. During the famine period of 1846–7, this limitation could no longer be maintained and the Poor Relief Extension Act, 1847, legalised out-relief to destitute persons disabled by old age, infirmity, sickness, or serious accident, and to widows having two or more legitimate children dependent on them. To other classes out-relief might also be given in the event of the workhouses being full or unfit, through the existence of fever or other infectious disease within them, for the reception of poor persons, but this provision was subject to the sanction of the Local Government Board, and to the observance of stringent conditions. By the same Act of 1847, relief either in or out of the workhouse was prohibited to any person in occupation of more than a quarter of an acre of land, but the prohibition was repealed in 1862 so far as it related to relief in the workhouse, and it now applies only to outdoor relief. At various subsequent periods, e.g. in 1880, 1886 and 1894, it was found necessary to relax the restrictions upon out-relief, and in 1898 permanent provision was made enabling out-relief to be granted to poor persons of any description in times of exceptional distress, if the county council are satisfied as to the existence of the distress, and the Local Government Board approve.

22. The statistics illustrate in a graphic manner the effect of these provisions. After the legalisation of out-relief to certain classes in 1847 the number of outdoor paupers rose to a great height. The average number in the year 1848–9 was 522,068. Just as rapidly, however, the number fell, with the return of agricultural prosperity, and in 1850–1 the average number was only 8,359. During the intervening period the workhouse accommodation had been enormously extended, and the numbers receiving indoor relief did not fall away so quickly. Sir George Nicholls remarks that the provisions relating to out-relief were regarded as exceptional, and that the workhouse test “never perhaps commanded more general assent, than at the time when a departure from it was thus sanctioned.” By the year 1855–6 the average number of outdoor paupers had fallen to 886. It was then at its minimum. With one exception, every subsequent year until 1881–2 showed an increase, until the average number had reached 40,000 in 1879–80. After the passing of the temporary enactment of 1880 enabling out-relief to be granted to all classes of poor persons the average number rose to 60,000 (1880-1), and since then the average number has never fallen below 54,000. "Though an effort was made to recover the lost ground in 1882, it was not followed up, and the workhouse test was never again rigidly enforced in periods of agricultural depression." (Report, Par. 94.)

23. Since the great famine of 1846-7 the average number relieved indoors has varied very little. It fell to 63,286 in 1855-6, and since that year it has only varied between 40,000 (1858-9) and 58,000 (1862-3.) (See Appendix No. I. (G) to Mr. Bourke's Evidence.)

24. Notwithstanding the continuous increase in out-relief which occurred between 1855 and 1880, and the comparatively stationary number of persons relieved indoors, the proportion of outdoor paupers to indoor paupers is, as has been shown, still lower in Ireland than in England and Wales, or Scotland, where out-relief has always preponderated.

25. Tables are attached (Nos. III. and IV.) which classify the indoor paupers and outdoor paupers, respectively, according to age, and give the rates per 1,000 of the estimated population in each age group. It may be observed that the progressive increase as age advances in the proportion of children relieved occurs wholly amongst the outdoor children. The risk of widowhood increases as the children grow older, and the increasing ratio amongst the outdoor children is clearly due to this cause. And it may also be observed that the drop in the proportion of women relieved at ages forty-five and fifty-five occurs wholly amongst the outdoor paupers. There would be no special reason why widows relieved in institutions should regain their independence at those ages, for they would generally be without children, or be suffering from some infirmity or sickness.

26. The number of children in the Trim and Glin District Schools was 310, and their ages were :—

(7) AGES OF WORKHOUSE INMATES.

27. Table V. classifies the inmates of the workhouses in Ireland on 31st March, 1906, according to age, and gives corresponding figures for the years 1881, 1891, and 1901 compiled from the Reports of the Decennial Censuses of those years. The proportions per 1,000 of the population in the same age groups are also given.

28. It will be seen from this Table that indoor relief was at a higher level in 1881 than in the other years included in the Table. The distress of 1879-80 had caused a considerable increase in pauperism, and notwithstanding the relaxation of the restrictions on outdoor relief large numbers were relieved in the workhouses. For this reason the comparison between the figures of 1881 and those for the other years should be made with caution.

29. The most striking feature of the Table is the very large increase in the proportions of the aged population who are in the workhouses. Even when compared with the figures for 1881 the proportions in 1906 show considerable increases. As already stated, however, the Irish proportions are still below the English proportions.

30. Regarding adults under sixty-five years of age the proportions have moved more closely with the general movement in indoor pauperism, but there is some evidence that the changes in the proportions for adults aged thirty-five to sixty-five have not been so favourable as those for adults under thirty-five. There has been some increase since 1891 in the proportion of children relieved indoors to the child population.

(8) GEOGRAPHICAL DISTRIBUTION OF PAUPERISM.

31. In Table VIII., the proportion of the population (1901) in three age groups and the proportion of paupers to population in the same age groups, are given for each county. The variation in the proportion of the total number of paupers to the total population is nearly as wide as in Scotland, the limits being 8.2 per 1,000 in Co. Londonderry, and 40.9 per 1,000 in Co. Limerick. To a great extent the variations are the result of the unequal distribution of the aged population. For instance, it would be expected that Co. Longford, with 135 persons aged sixty and upwards amongst each 1,000 of its population would have a higher rate of pauperism than Co. Antrim which has only 77 persons aged sixty and upwards in each 1,000 of its population. The rate of pauperism in Co. Longford was 23.2 per 1,000; in Co. Antrim it was 13.3 per 1,000. But the rate of pauperism in the different counties does not always vary directly with the proportion of aged persons in the population for Co. Monaghan, with 138 persons aged sixty and upwards, per 1,000 of the population, has a rate of pauperism (13.2 per 1,000) less than half that of Co. Dublin, which has only 72 aged persons per 1,000 of its population. The proportion of aged paupers to the aged population varies considerably, Co. Londonderry having an aged pauperism rate of only 39.3 per 1,000, whilst Co. Limerick has a corresponding rate of 175.7 per 1,000. Generally speaking, the aged pauperism rate is higher in the southern counties than in the northern counties, and this is also the case with the rates of pauperism for other adults and for children.

32. The more unsatisfactory condition of the southern Provinces in this respect is also shown in a Table put in by Mr. Bourke (see Appendix No. I. (A) to his Evidence), in which it is shown that, on June 29th, 1907, the rate of pauperism was 3.0 per cent. in Leinster, and 3.1 per cent. in Munster, whereas it was only 1.8 per cent. in Connaught and 1.2 per cent. in Ulster. In the same Table Mr. Bourke has also shown the valuation per head of the population, and it is remarkable that Leinster with the highest valuation per head (£4 7s.) has almost the highest rate of pauperism, whilst Connaught, with the lowest valuation per head (£2 5s.) has a comparatively low rate of pauperism. It may also be observed that the two southern Provinces have a high proportion of outdoor paupers to indoor paupers. Ulster, with the lowest rate of pauperism, has about equal numbers of outdoor and indoor paupers, but Connaught, on the other hand, has the highest proportion of outdoor to indoor paupers, and seems to be an illustration of a low rate of pauperism coupled with administration on out-relief lines.

(9) OCCUPATIONS OF PERSONS RELIEVED.

33. In Tables VI., and VII., adults in receipt of relief on March 31st, 1906, are classified according to the occupation they then followed, or had previously followed. Upwards of one-half of the men in receipt of relief were or had been agricultural workers or casual labourers. A considerable number are also shown under the heads of "Building Trades," "Conveyance," "Dress," and "Flax and Linen Manufacture."

34. Amongst women the principal occupations followed or previously followed were domestic service, charring, agriculture, dress, and flax and linen manufacture. In the case of charwomen, agricultural workers, and shirt-makers, the outdoor paupers are in a considerable majority. In those occupations relief would thus appear to be given to a large number of women who are earning.

35. In the following sections a few of the principal figures relating to the various classes of paupers will be given, with references to the more detailed Tables of statistics relating to each class:—

(10) WIDOWS.

36. The statistics of the number of widows in receipt of relief are not complete. The total number relieved in institutions on March 31st, 1906, was 5,600 classified as follows:—

Able-bodied widows—
In health	-	-	-	399
Temporarily disabled	-	-	-	271
Widows not able-bodied	-	-	-	4,591
Widows, lunatics or idiots	-	-	-	339
				5,600

Of the widows in receipt of outdoor relief the Census only shows the number of able-bodied widows, and these numbered 4,156, and had 8,716 children dependent on them. The ages of these widows, indoor and outdoor, are given in Table IX.

37. The Vice-Regal Commission on Poor Law Reform also obtained statistical information as to widows in receipt of relief. (See Appendix to Report Cd. 3203, pp. 16-24.) On March 11th, 1905, the number of "widows of good character with only one child" in the workhouses was only sixty. The number of "able-bodied widows having two or more legitimate children dependent on them" was 2,790, and the number of their dependent children was 9,175. (Ibid., pp. 27-33.) By comparison with the Census figures it would appear that upwards of 1,000 able-bodied widows with no legitimate children or only one legitimate child receive outdoor relief, probably on account of sickness.

(11) THE AGED.

38. There were 50,697 persons over sixty years of age in receipt of relief on March 31st, 1906. Nearly two-thirds of these were women and rather more than one-third were men. The numbers are classified in six groups of ages in Tables II. to IV. Aged women requiring relief are more frequently given outdoor relief than indoor relief, but aged men more frequently receive indoor relief.

39. The number of paupers over sixty years of age represented 103·2 per 1,000 of the population of the same ages. The increase in the rate of aged paupers to aged population has already been mentioned.

(12) CHILDREN.

40. On March 31st, 1906, there were 25,165 children under sixteen years of age (other than casuals) in receipt of relief, and of that number 9,056 were relieved in institutions, and 16,109 were otherwise relieved. The ages of these are shown in Tables II. to IV., and further details are given in Table IX. From the latter Table it will be seen that upwards of one-third of the total number of pauper children are the children of able-bodied widows in receipt of outdoor relief, and that one-fourth are orphans or other children relieved without parents.

41. In paragraph 26 the number and ages of children in district schools were given.

42. The number of children in certified schools on March 27th, 1909, was only thirty-seven, of which number thirty-two were girls. (See Report of Local Government Board for Ireland, 1908-9, p. 229.)

43. The number boarded out or out at nurse on the same date was 2,493. Of that number 1,266 were boys and 1,227 were girls. (Ibid.) Very few of these children are under two years of age. (See Appendix to Report of Vice-Regal Commission, p. 119.)

44. The number of children over whom the Guardians assumed control under the Poor Law Act, 1899, during the year 1904 was 276, of whom 150 were boys, and 126 were girls. (Ibid.)

45. A considerable reduction has taken place in the numbers of children under fifteen years of age in workhouses. Excluding children in the workhouse hospitals the numbers at intervals of ten years have been:—(see Appendix No. I. (F) to Mr. Bourke's Evidence):—

January 3rd, 1852	-	-	-	-	76,502
" 4th, 1862	-	-	-	-	15,222
" 6th, 1872	-	-	-	-	12,421
" 7th, 1882	-	-	-	-	11,412
" 2nd, 1892	-	-	-	-	6,534
" 4th, 1902	-	-	-	-	5,724

(13) THE ABLE-BODIED.

46. The number of able-bodied persons in workhouses was formerly shown in a separate heading of the Returns. Many of these persons were not in reality able-bodied, and in 1902 the headings of the Returns were altered so as to show the number of "Sick," "Aged and Infirm," "Lunatics," "Children," "Mothers with infants" and "All other classes." The numbers appearing under the last mentioned heading may be regarded as the number of able-bodied. In 1905 Vice-Regal Commission on Poor Law Reform obtained certain information relating to this class, and the number of able-bodied persons in receipt of both indoor and outdoor relief was shown by the Census of Paupers of March 31st, 1906. There is some reason to doubt the complete accuracy of the last-named Return, but, taking the whole of Ireland, the results probably give a general idea of the magnitude of this class.

47. The number of able-bodied men and women in health relieved in institutions on March 31st, 1906, was (see Table IX):—

Men	-	-	-	-	-	1,892
Women	-	-	-	-	-	3,226
						5,118

Of these numbers 382 men and 193 women were over sixty years of age. In the case of outdoor paupers, wives took the same classification as their husbands in the Census Returns, and it is not possible, therefore, to give the total number of able-bodied women in receipt of outdoor relief. Moreover, of the other women receiving outdoor relief who were ordinarily able-bodied a proportion would be sick, but such persons were not shown separately. With these explanations the following figures may be given:—

Outdoor able-bodied male paupers:

Relieved on account of sudden and urgent necessity					62
Sickness, etc., of family	-	-	-	-	176
Want of work or other causes	-	-	-	-	181
					419

Outdoor able-bodied female paupers:

Wives of able-bodied men in receipt of outdoor relief					1,293
Widows	-	-	-	-	4,156
Single women without children	-	-	-	-	1,181
Mothers of illegitimate children	-	-	-	-	13
Wives of non-resident men	-	-	-	-	91
					6,734

48. The Vice-regal Commission found that there were 1,512 able-bodied men in the workhouses on March 11th, 1905, but "ins-and-outs" and sane epileptics were not included in that figure. (See Appendix to Report, pp. 9-15.) Any of those classes who were able-bodied would have been classed with the able-bodied in the Census Returns. Of able-bodied women the Vice-regal Commission found there were 1,462 in the workhouse on March 11th, 1905, but women who entered to have, or with, an illegitimate child as well as "ins-and-outs" and sane epileptics, were omitted from that class. Some interesting particulars are given in the Tables containing these particulars of the occupations and characters of the able-bodied inmates of workhouses. (Ibid., pp. 17-25.)

49. From the Tables put in by Mr. Bourke (see Appendix No. I (F) to his Evidence) it appears that, whilst the numbers of able-bodied men in workhouses has not varied much during the last thirty years, the number of able-bodied women in workhouses has considerably diminished. The following are the numbers at decennial intervals:—

	Men.	Women.
January 3, 1852 - - - -	16,194	37,623
" 4, 1862 - - - -	3,486	9,194
" 6, 1872 - - - -	2,265	5,197
" 7, 1882 - - - -	3,378	5,294
" 2, 1892 - - - -	3,323	3,630
" 4, 1902 - - - -	2,250	3,072

(14) THE SICK.

50. The Census Returns only give partial information regarding the sick. Of the ordinarily able-bodied persons in the workhouses on March 31st, 1906, there were 2,079 men who were temporarily disabled, and 1,648 women temporarily disabled. Of the ordinarily able-bodied men in receipt of outdoor relief, 1,576 were relieved on account of their own sickness or accident. (See Table IX.)

51. More complete information regarding the sick is, however, given by the Local Government Board and by the Viceregal Commission. The Local Government Board show that the average daily number of the sick poor in infirmaries or hospitals connected with the workhouses was 14,845 in the year ended September 30th, 1908. Of that number about 500 appear to be fever patients. About 200 pauper patients are to be found at any one time in hospitals not connected with the workhouses. (See Report of Local Government Board for Ireland, 1908-9, pp. xviii. and 226-8.)

52. The Viceregal Commission found that the number of outdoor adult male paupers relieved in cases of their own sickness or accident was 1,717 on March 11th, 1905, and that the corresponding total for women was 1,095. (See Appendix to Report, pp. 26-33.) That Commission also gave comprehensive statistics as to the nature of the diseases from which sick paupers in workhouse infirmaries, fever hospitals, and extern hospitals were suffering. (Ibid., pp. 60-75.)

53. Whilst the number of sick persons in workhouse hospitals and infirmaries moves up and down with the corresponding movement in indoor pauperism generally, the number has not materially changed during the last fifty years. Dr. Stafford put in a Chart (No. IV.) showing the number on first Saturday of January in each year from 1852 to 1907, and the average daily number for the years 1852 to 1906.

The following figures are taken from that Chart :—

PERSONS IN WORKHOUSE HOSPITALS AND INFIRMARIES.

Year.	Number on 1st Saturday in January.	Average Daily Number.	Percentage of Average Daily Number on Population.
1856 - - - - -	18,929	17,997	·27
1866 - - - - -	17,645	17,029	·30
1876 - - - - -	16,597	16,333	·30
1886 - - - - -	17,439	17,244	·33
1896 - - - - -	17,305	16,932	·35
1906 - - - - -	14,803	14,611	·32

54. The medical treatment of the outdoor sick poor (whether in receipt of other forms of poor relief or not) is provided for by the Medical Charities Acts. Under those Acts 642,614 new cases were attended and registered during the year ended March 31st, 1909, and of that number 481,529 attended at the dispensaries and 161,085 were attended at their own homes. (See Report of Local Government Board for Ireland, 1908-9, p. xxii.) Dr. Stafford also put in Charts (Nos. I. to III.) showing the changes in the numbers during the years 1853-1907. From 1863-1891 the numbers tended to decrease. Since 1891 there has been an appreciable increase.

(15) TRAMPS OR NIGHT LODGERS.

55. The average number of tramps or night lodgers at the close of each week during the year ended March 31st, 1909 was 984, and the weekly average number of admissions during the same year was 6,073. (See Report of Local Government Board for Ireland, p. xix.) Much the greater proportion of this class are men. (Ibid., pp. 232-3.) From a Table put in by Mr. Bourke it would appear that the number of tramps has been increasing since the year 1900. (See Appendix No. I. (E) to Mr. Bourke's Evidence.)
